"We bring our own stories to these tabletops...You can imagine who might be coming to sit down, or who did sit down, or the photograph may spark the memory of a meal that you had in Italy, sitting with the sun on your back and the beautiful way that they set a table."

“From plastic plaid tablecloths to smooth, reassuring white linens, we wonder what that meal was like and with whom did she dine. Tables are laid with clues, from perfect pre-meal symmetry, to the sensual mess of tables loitered at; others, neatly ravaged with emptied espresso cups, stubbed cigarette butts, and what we can only imagine are the dredges of a great conversation left behind.”
